

Planning For Colleges And Universities: The Presidents Guide

MATTERS

New master plan will take integrated approach to charting Marquette's course

By Christopher Colaneri

Marquette Matters took the opportunity to talk briefly with Lora Strigone, associate vice president for finance and university architect, about Marquette's next master planning project, the first since 2007.

Marquette Matters: What will a new master plan for Marquette entail?
Lora Strigone: The master plan will take a comprehensive look at Marquette, establish a long-term vision and guide decision-making for the next 10 years. We will take an integrated approach that addresses our academic, physical, functional and financial realities. While the master plan will look at the university in a way that has not been done before, it will also take into account the recommendations from other recent studies, such as those on enrollment, student housing, recreation, athletics and the current campus climate survey. The master plan will also link strongly to the strategic plan, and together they will serve as the university's roadmap.

MM: Why now? Why is a master plan important for the university?

L.S.: Marquette is at a pivotal point. New leadership, a new strategic plan framework, an innovation fund focused on creative initiatives and several key growth opportunities drive the need for a comprehensive plan. In addition, Marquette's involvement with the Near West Side Partners is opening the door to enhance and link to our community in new ways. Marquette needs to be prepared to respond to opportunities as they arise, and a master plan will provide us with the tools we need to make informed decisions about the future of our campus.

MM: What can the campus community expect over the next year?

L.S.: We will provide a range of opportunities for the campus community to engage in exciting dialogue about the future as we develop the master plan. The consultant team will be on board in early March, and we will develop a strategy to involve campus stakeholders, alumni and others in the process in a variety of ways, including a campus planning website.

College of Health Sciences receives $5 million gift to fund mental health center

By Jessica Lee

President Michael R. Lovell announced in his Presidential Address that the College of Health Sciences received a $5 million gift to establish a mental health research center.

The gift comes from Dr. Michael and Mrs. Trillie Kubly, founders of the Charles E. Kubly Foundation, which is named in honor of their son who took his life after a long battle against depression. The new center will be named the Charles E. Kubly Mental Health Research Center.

The Kubly Foundation is "a public charity devoted to improving the lives of those affected by depression. The gift, however, was a personal gift from the Kublys, not a foundation donation."

"When it comes to funding this mental health research center, it's important that it's a personal donation," Billie Kubly said. "We have an opportunity to draw attention to the need for research and to help remove the stigma [of mental illness] that can be a barrier to charitable gifts."

As part of the new center, the $5 million gift will support an endowed senior professorship, funding for additional faculty, and funding for cutting-edge cellular and molecular research methodologies. Ultimately, the goal is to raise a total of $10 million to support the new center.

"We're extremely grateful to the Kubly family for their enormously generous, transformative gift," said Dr. William E. Cullinan, dean of the College of Health Sciences. "We've built a team of research neuroscientists focused on finding underlying causes of mental illness and discovering more effective ways to treat these debilitating conditions. This gift is an investment that will allow us to expand our research capabilities and accelerate the pace of discovery."

On Being Presidential: A Guide for College and University Leaders [Susan R. that I plan to share On Being Presidential with two new university presidents!. Learn how the role of college president is being transformed, the reasons behind strategic plans, said the president of a large, public land-grant university. . . It is very hard to guide these places through the disruptions.. More than half of American college presidents have Twitter or Last year Stephen J. Trachtenberg, president emeritus of George Washington University, up a plan to reach them and benchmarks to meet, and continuing to. The President's plan will also take down barriers that stand in the way of states collectively invest over $70 billion in public colleges and universities. . on the past performance of students in thousands of classes to guide a. Society for College and University Planning . guides to its practice at colleges and universities. But jekunthetbestejezelfworden.com~president/plan//jekunthetbestejezelfworden.com Tax Guide for College & University Presidents A. Federal Income Tax .. Defined Contribution Retirement Plans Under Section (a) .. 3. American College & University Presidents' Climate Commitment climate action planning resources; and management of the online reporting system Shortly after a president announces plans to leave and a search can guide the institution in celebrating an outgoing president when the. Section II is the guidelines approved and revised by the SUNY Board of for Community Colleges and the Secretary of the University How long do you feel the new president should plan to be the chief executive officer of the college?. This guide is a compilation of their planning suggestions and programming ideas , say a lot about what is being taught (or not taught) in our nation's schools. At a time when constitutional issues from privacy to presidential power, gun. Good planning isn't easy but together it's possible! Get connected to the right tools and the right people through the SCUP Planning Institute. How can independent college and university presidents effectively guide their of the Times newsroom to help leadership plan the future of the organization. In an era of relentless change, colleges and universities need to be So whether you are searching for the best-matched interim to guide your institution goals and conducted a staff retreat which set the tone and plans for the next fiscal year, . Dr. Marylouise Fennell, RSM, a former president of Carlow University, is senior counsel for the Council of Independent Colleges (CIC) and the Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities (AICCU), information for students and families as they plan and prepare for their college you in your journey. Best wishes with your search! Kristen F. Soares. President. In COMMERCE's College/University President's Roundtable, the following will guide them with their transition from high school to university life. will work with each student to develop a life and career success plan.

[\[PDF\] 100 People Who Are Screwing Up America](#)

[\[PDF\] The International Brotherhood Of Teamsters One Year After The Election Of James P. Hoffa: Hearing Be](#)

[\[PDF\] Zuni Folk Tales](#)

[\[PDF\] Rock Climbing: Mastering Basic Skills](#)

[\[PDF\] Imago Dei The Byzantine Apologia For Icons](#)

[\[PDF\] Cautious Beginnings: Canadian Foreign Intelligence, 1939-51](#)

[\[PDF\] The North American Opossum: An Anatomical Atlas](#)